DRAFTING FOR THE ARMY
WILL BEGIN NEXT WEEK

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 7.—Selection day for the new national army is approaching rapidly as the local exemption boards in the various states complete their organization. Indications are that the drawing will be held next week, but no official statement has been made as to the war department's plans.

It is understood that it is proposed to place in a single jury wheel in Washington one complete set of numbers. When a number is taken from the wheel, the man in each exemption district whose card bears that serial number will be drafted.

Thus as each number is drawn approximately 30,000 men will be drafted, or one in each exemption district. If 1,200,000 men are to be called before the exemption boards in the first selection, which seems highly probable, only 40 numbers would need to be drawn.

There are numerous complications which must arise, however, and the method of solving them can be known only when the administration makes known its plans in detail. For instance, the number of registered individuals in each district who are liable for military service will certainly not be the same. Aliens are registered, but not liable for duty.

Provision must be made also to balance as far as possible the chances of military duty between the men in each district, so that disqualifications of a large number in any particular district for any reason will not put upon those disqualified additional likelihood of being sent to the front.

BONE DRY PROPOSAL DEFEATED
IN THE SENATE BY 54 TO 36

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 7.—The senate on reconsideration eliminated the Cummins amendment prohibiting the withdrawal of distilled beverages now in bond, and adopted the amendment by Smoot, proposing to direct the president to take over distilled beverages in bond upon compensation to the owners.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—At the close of a day of turbulent debate and after voting 54 to 36 against the so-called "bone dry" amendment, the senate last night recessed until today in the midst of the prohibition fight on the food control bill.

Defeat of the "bone dry" proposal assures legislation prohibiting manufacture of intoxicants will be limited to distilled beverages. Whether consumption as well as manufacture of distilled spirits shall cease during the war, a new element injected into the contest at the eleventh hour completely disrupted the leaders' well laid plans and caused the recess for conference on a compromise.

After roll calls showing a considerable majority against stopping manufacture of beer and wines or giving the president power to suspend their manufacture, the senate voted 58 to 10 to prohibit the importation of distilled beverages.

BOUNCING BABY GIRL

Horace Chiatovich, the grocer on Erie Main street, had a double cause for celebrating the Fourth of July and hopes he will be spared to continue the celebration every year for many to come. The event that induced this joyous frame of mind was the arrival of an eleven-pound girl on the afternoon of July 3. Both mother and child are doing nicely.

J. G. SWEENEY DIES
OF ACUTE ANEMIAFORMER CHIEF JUSTICE PASSES
AWAY AT SISTER'S HOME IN OAKLAND

James G. Sweeney, former chief justice of the supreme court of Nevada, and at one time a leading figure in Nevada politics, died at noon yesterday at Oakland, Cal., from pernicious progressive anemia, after a lingering illness of several months, says the Reno Gazette. His death occurred at the home of his sister, Mrs. George Lamman, where he was taken from a hospital in which he had been receiving treatment.

It is given out that the funeral ceremonies will take place at Carson City, where the remains will be interred beside those of his father and mother.

Surviving Mr. Sweeney are his two sisters, Mrs. George Lamman of Oakland, and Mrs. George L. Sanford of Carson City, and one daughter, Alice Sweeney.

Judge Sweeney was born at Carson City forty years ago in January, the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Sweeney, prominent pioneers of the state. He was educated in the Carson City schools and later was graduated from St. Mary's college in Oakland, and the Columbia university at Washington.

He then went to work in the mines of the Comstock, studying law in his spare moments, and was admitted to the Nevada bar when he was but twenty-one years old.

Sweeney represented Ormsby county in the legislature and when but twenty-four years old he was elected attorney general, in which position he gave such great satisfaction that he was elected a member of the supreme court at the expiration of his term, when he was but twenty-eight years old.

He bears the distinction of having been the youngest attorney general and supreme court justice ever elected to these positions in the United States.

sible for them, they resulted from employers enticing negroes from the south to the city "to break the back of labor."

"There should be no apology for the infamous brutalities committed on the colored people of East St. Louis," declared Mr. Roosevelt in beginning his vigorous denunciation of the riots. "Justice is not a mere phrase. It has to be translated into action. How can we praise Russia for doing justice to all peoples when we must apologize for doing murder to the helpless?"

"In the past we have listened to the excuse from those in authority in old Russia for the fearful attacks on the Jews. I will do anything for the laboring man except that which is wrong, and that I won't do for him or anyone else. I care not a snap of my finger for a telegram from the head of the labor unions of Illinois. Let there be the fullest investigation into these murders."

It was at this point that the interruption came from Mr. Gompers. Mr. Roosevelt already had departed a little earlier in the evening from the text of his formal speech of welcome to the Russians to refer to the riots.

"Before I greet the envoys of the new republic," he said, "I wish to say a word to you in regard to something that has recently occurred inside our own boundaries."

"Before we speak of justice to others it behooves us to do justice within our own boundaries. I refer to the race riots in East St. Louis, a race riot for which, so far as we can see, there was no provocation and which resulted in such appalling brutality as to leave a stain on the American name."

"It behooves us to express our condemnation of acts that give the lie to our words within the limits of our own country and to say that it is impossible that there should be justification for mob violence. It is our duty to demand that the governmental authorities shall use with ruthless severity every power at their command to punish those guilty of murder, whether committed by whites against blacks or whether by blacks against whites."

"It is our duty to insist first of all, on the restoration of order and the reign of law. Upon the foundation of law and order we must build the structure of justice."

Mr. Roosevelt then welcomed the Russian commission.

BUTLER THEATER

"The Mortal Sin," the five-part Metro feature which will be shown at the Butler today, and in which dainty Viola Dana plays the leading role, is a gripping melodrama of unusual interest. In "The Mortal Sin" Miss Dana has one of the greatest opportunities of her career and she has taken full advantage of the possibilities offered. The part of Jane Anderson is replete with dramatic strength, and gives the versatile little star a chance to display her great emotional ability. It has also brought to her an opportunity to pose for the celebrated artist, Prince Pierre Troubetzkoy. The prince has offered to paint a portrait of Miss Dana and present it to her, considering her an ideal subject. The prince, whose wife is the well known American novelist, Amelle Rives, came to this conclusion by seeing Miss Dana pose in "The Mortal Sin" in the character of the Madonna, in which, as Jane Anderson, she poses for the artist, Jean Rambeau. "Discovered at last, the most beautiful American girl!" said the prince, who was on a visit to the Metro studios where the photoplay was being made. "It will be a privilege to paint a picture of her." In addition to the feature, there is a two-reel L-Ko comedy, which is always sure to give you a good laugh. Tomorrow, House Peters and Myrtle Stedman, in "The Happiness of Three Women," and "The Mystery of the Double Cross."
